

InTouch Privacy Policy

In order to provide our clients the highest level of service, we often require them to provide us confidential information including, but not limited to: purchase orders, product specifications and engineering data, product manufacturing process data, existing supplier contracts, and factory contact information. In all business dealings we strive to keep this information completely confidential and will not release it except when its release is integral to completing our job.

Any information provided by our website visitors and clients will be held confidentially by InTouch and will not be sold to any other person, organization or business.

Any information provided by our website visitors and clients will not be released outside of InTouch's own organization except as required by law.
